

Lore for LORE: A Needs Assessment for Odegaard's Learning Object Repository for EWP

The Project

In the summer of 2017, UW's Odegaard Library created LORE to support EWP teachers

LORE: an online bank of teaching resources

EWP: A collection of 100-level academic writing classes.

Until this winter, an assessment had never been run to tell if LORE was helping.

Our Process

8 interviews with EWP instructors

How do you teach research?

What do your students need to learn?

How could LORE be better?

I like to use active learning.

My class could work more on using sources.

I wish we had more training in LORE.

Now the Library Has:

- A replicable process
  - Roadmap to assessment: Records of planning, process and insights
  - Background on EWP TA's classrooms and processes
- Increased connection with EWP Instructors
- Recommended content updates for LORE

The Library Can Now:

- Revise LORE training and other services to better integrate with EWP
- Target LORE content updates to match instructors' needs
- Repeat the assessment to judge effectiveness of changes
- Continue to engage with the EWP with a better understanding of administration and instructor workflow and goals
