

From Collection to Library:

Kalapuya High School

Caitlin McMahan, MLIS

Schools deserve a library, but what if they can't afford one?

Kalapuya High School is an alternative high school in Eugene, OR with a collection consisting of donated materials, but no systems in place to help students and staff easily assess or access materials and no budget to impliment positive change.

The project: creating a functioning school library

Needs Assessment

- Assess KHS Information Needs
- Create Implementation Plan
- Low-cost

Organization

- Fiction
- Non-Fiction
- Class Sets

Maintenance

- Staffing Schedule
- Library Space
- Procedure Guides

Cataloging System

- Digital Curation
- Lending Capabilites

Circulation

- Patron Profiles
- Circulation Procedures

Impact

Kalapuya High School will have a physical library space, with free digital access to material records and an organizational system that will make locating and borrowing materials a simple process.

Future Steps

- Encouraging student collaboration by offering extra-credit to help maintain library
- Discover new ways to obtain quality book donations
