How Libraries can be an Integral Part of Helping their Communities Rebuild after Fires

What is Building Better?

TOGETHER

Most libraries already have disaster recovery plans in place to ensure the safety of personnel and security of technological systems after a disaster, but these plans often lack a vital component: survivor support planning. Libraries are well-positioned to play a key role in the recovery and rebuilding of their communities, making it critical to establish a plan for aiding survivors of disaster before disaster strikes.
