

Cognition

noun.

the mental action or process of acquiring knowledge and understanding through thought, experience, and the senses.

An educational platform for students to help understand concepts around technology and misinformation.

There's a lot of misinformation out there

From developing stories to fake news, sattirical posts and outright decietful information. For students and young adults, it can be difficult to understand how these revolve around your life and how they impact you.

Topics to discuss together, or learn on your own

Through either individual or group learning, we provide discussion questions and interactive examples to help students engage with how these technical topics affect their daily lives.

Ready to Start Learning?

