

Mmentos

A scrapbook to record your memories

The Problem:

No easy way to store memories

Social media focuses on connectivity and openness

Unorganized for future viewing

Disregard for privacy
